

WHY THE EARTH IS NOT BILLIONS OF YEARS OLD

NYRON MEDINA

There is ample evidence from many discoveries that proves the age of earth to be not so old, (billions of years), as scientists are claiming; in fact, all the theories used to claim that the earth evolved after billions of years have been proven to be false. An example is seen in the so-called geologic column designed by naturalists to prove the age of the earth. We are told that different layers of rocks can be used to judge the age of fossils, by finding them at various levels in the rock strata. But this has been disproved by many dramatic finds. "We should be very surprised ... to find fossil humans appearing in the record before mammals are supposed to have evolved! If a single, well verified mammal skull were to turn up in 500 million-year-old rocks, our whole modern theory of evolution would be utterly destroyed ... The unequivocal discovery of a fossil population of horses in pre-Cambrian rocks would disprove evolution." Carl Baugh, Why Do Men Believe Evolution Against All Odds? p. 91. What if a hammer of advanced iron metal were to be found embedded in rock which scientists have dated to be about 140 millions of years old, which is about 138 millions of years before any of the so-called first types of apes that man evolved from (God forbid!) even saw the light of day? Yes, this is what the first picture shows. "Max Han was fishing with his wife near London, Texas, when he found a rock with wood protruding from it. When the rock was cracked open, this octagonally shaped iron hammer was exposed. The wood handle is partially coalified with quartz and calcite crystalline inclusions. Tests performed at Battelle Laboratory document the hammer's unusual metallurgy: 96.6% iron; 2.6% chlorine; and 0.74% sulfur (no carbon). Density tests indicate forging of exceptional quality. A unique coating of FeO, which does not readily form under present atmospheric conditions, appears to inhibit rusting. The enclosing rock contains Lower Cretaceous fossils. It is a concretionary sandstone nodule from the nearby cliff which is made up of such nodules. This cliff is a part of the Lower Cretaceous Edwards Plateau which evolutionists tell us was formed 140 million years ago, when dinosaurs roamed the earth. Of course, the coexistence of humans and dinosaurs would destroy evolutionary theory, so maybe the hammer was made by dinosaurs. Do you really think so?" Ibid p. 93. This and many other finds prove that the geological column with its billions of years is certainly not true. How then do we explain the hammer? The Bible tells us that iron was discovered and worked long before the great Flood. "And Zillah, she also bare Tubalcain, an instructor of every artificer in copper and iron ..." Genesis 4:22. Thus people before Noah's Flood used iron, so that when the flood came, the result was the formation of different layers and density of rocks in which many things were imbedded, including this iron hammer used before the Flood. This proves the Biblical concept of history and disproves evolution. What about the fossilized human foot found in a cowboy boot in the U.S.A.? Is it millions of years old before man even evolved according to the foolish theory of evolution? Does it take millions of years for fossils to be formed? Read this: "Everyone has heard, "We know for certain it takes millions and millions years for fossils to petrify." It's so obvious that no proof is necessary, and of course no witnesses to verify. The claim is just repeated over and over. So we hear, "Everybody knows that." Really? How old do you think this boot could be? Millions of years old? Do you really think so? The rubber-soled boot with petrified cowboy leg, bones and all, was found about 1980 in a dry creek bed near West Texas town of Iraan by Mr. Jerry Stone, and employee of Crovette Oil Company. The boot was hand made by the M. L. Leddy boot company of San Angelo, Texas, which began manufacturing boots in 1936. Gayland Leddy, nephew of the founder, grew up in the boot business and now manages Boot Town in Garland, Texas. He recognized the "number 10 stitch pattern" used by his uncle's company where he worked for many years. Mr. Leddy believes the boot was made in the early 1950s. Only the contents of the boot are fossilized, not the boot itself, demonstrating that some materials fossilize more readily than others. The bones of the partial leg and foot within the boot were revealed by an elaborate set of CT scans performed at Harris Methodist Hospital in Ft. Worth, Texas, on July 24, 1997. The radiologic technician was Evelyn Americus, AART ... The fact that some materials can fossilize rapidly under certain circumstances is well known by experts in the field and is not really a scientific issue. However, the general public has been misled in order to facilitate the impression of great ages. The dramatic example of the "Limestone Cowboy" immediately communicates the truth of the matter. Fossilization proves nothing about long periods of time." Ibid, pp. 110-111. Thus fossilized animal bones is no proof that the earth is billions of year old, but simply that the Flood happened. Amen.
